Among the cities who intend to go heavy on the national game next season, and which have not yet boasted of a professional clab, are Albany, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Louis-ville, Rochester and Syracuse.

The yellow fever is terribly prevalent at Tampa, Florida, where there were forty cases at one time. Six deaths from the same epidemic occurred at Charleston during the twenty-four hours ending last night.

The total number of immigrants arrived during last year was 321,350, 190,428 of whom were males, and 130,521 females. This shows a clear balance of sixty thousand to offset the excess of women already similar results? Do NOT OVERSTOCK.—This is a common error. Make an estimate of how much grain. error. Make an estimate of how much grain, hay, straw, and corn-stalks you have to feed out. Taking wheat, oats, peas, beans, barley, and corn together, you will not probably be far wrong in estimating that for every one hundred pounds of threshed grain, you have lett one hundred and iftry pounds of fodder. Cattle, horses, and sheep will eat per day, per one hundred pounds of live weight, three pounds of hay or its equivalent-say one-half pound of hay two pounds of grain. South a ration will keep animals in good growing condition, and one-quarter pound more grain per far will make a full-grown sheep quate fat. It will be well to estimate that and of the strew and folder will be wasted, in the form of buts, tops of will be wanted, in the form of buts, tops of stacks, P'or, etc. Do not overstock. The steamboatmen interested in the maximonths will be in direct communication by railroad with New Orieans. Thus far, they only see circuses but no dramatic companies, and need them badly.

There have been many tires along the Chicago, Burlington and Quiney railroad lately, caused by the dry we ther and the sparks from the focomotives. Farmers and railroad men are kept busy whipping out the flame. The country is full of dust and smoke.

A chicken thief on Long Island tried to enter the ben house of a farmer, not knowing that a big dog was chained near by. Railway directors may get a valuable hin from a sketch in the Berlin Kladderwalatesh the German Paneh. It represents a dealer in "necessities for railroad travelers" offering a tourist an immense coat of tripple-wadded armor, tastefully gotten bp, and supplemented by a cork leg and a crucin. By its side is a trunk, with regular buffers on each end. Through the window the traveler sees a locomotive on the track, its smoke pipe appropriately surrounded by a death's head. The scene is as suggestive as if it were drawn from some point hard by the depot of the Eastern railway of Massachusetts.

The GRAIN BONTER.

The elevators, which completely environed the city, and which contributed largely to the trade of Chicago, were swept away in a few moments. There are but four left standing, two owned by Munn & Scott, one by Fint & Thompson, and the central elevator on the lake. Three nellion bushels of grain are still barning, making monstrous bonfires, which, with the acres of coal on fire, cast a dismal giare over the ruins at night, and present a heart sickening spectacle.

The cannot at present a heart sickening spectacle.

a magazine says: "The trade in wild beasts is a system as regular as the trade in tea, coffee and cotton, or any other merchandise. Some creatures, of which parrots are the most numerous, are brought over by sailors, who intend them, perhaps, as presents for their sweethearts, but they sell them for grog and tobacco as soon as they land. A dealer bas agents in every country, and these agents communica e with the natives of the various countries. The system is now carried to such perfection, that, if any gentleman or lady would like an elephant for private riding, a tiger as an ornament to the garden, a crocodile or hippopotamus for the lake, or an estrich or enne for the laws, the wish can be gratified by merely addressing a letter to the London dealer. He will calculate the distance, the time occupied in catching and transporting the desired animal, give a estimate of the cost and deliver it at the door on the appointed day."
